Thomas is a very smart student at his school. He excels in Math and French, but because of this he is called "teacher's pet" and "Genius" by the basketball team captain, Victor, and his friends. After school one day, coincidentally on his birthday, he runs into Victor and his friends and gets bullied verbally and physically. He does not tell his parents or grandparents when he gets home, but instead chooses to enjoy the birthday celebration they all planned for him. After all, he could use all the love he can get. But an unexpected thing happened when he started to worry and cry about having to go back to school and face Victor and his friends. The gift from his grandparents, a teddy bear named Sami, comes alive and offers Thomas some advice on how to stop his bullying problem. What does Sami the teddy bear say to Thomas? Will it work? Will he ever be happy and have friends at school without being bullied?

Sami the Magic Bear - No To Bullying, written and illustrated by Murielle Bourdon, is a delightful children's educational story. It introduces young readers to the concepts of bullying, self confidence, nervousness, self doubt, forgiveness, compromise, acceptance, and communication. Bullying is a serious issue in today's society and is surprisingly not talked about often enough within school systems or within individual households. Serious consequences occur when children who are being bullied keep that burden to themselves. Most often they are afraid of what the person doing the bullying will do to them if they tell someone else, and also might be ashamed to admit that they are being bullied. Most times, a young child needs just one friend to encourage them to create a solution to their bullying problem.

The author does a fantastic job of creating a friend and a solution to the bullying problem. The book is unique, the dialog and text comprehensible, and the characters highly relatable to young readers. I loved this book. I believe every parent, teacher, guardian and young reader should read this book to help them in any bullying scenario they may come across in their future, whether that be related to themselves or someone else.

Laurie is a very active little girl. She loves school, but she has to keep busy all the time or she starts to fidget. She loves playing soccer and she's even the captain of her soccer team. So when Laurie suddenly lacks energy and her cheeks lose their rosy glow, her parents are understandably worried. They take her to see the family doctor and he runs a bunch of tests.

The results are not happy news. Laurie has leukemia. She has to be hospitalized immediately and the only visitors allowed are her parents and they have to be thoroughly sanitized and gowned before they can visit her. Laurie becomes very despondent and sad. When her class sends her a big card with lots of messages and a special Sami Bear to keep her company, things start to improve and, with Sami Bear's help, Laurie is determined to fight her battle with leukemia.

It is difficult for children being sick; it is also difficult for children watching other children who are sick. Any child who has had a friend fighting a life-threatening disease like leukemia knows just how difficult it is. Children aren't supposed to get sick; they're not supposed to die. But it does happen, sadly. Murielle Bourdon's picture book story, Sami the Magic Bear: A Trip to the Hospital!, book 3 in the Sami the Magic Bear series, is an informative and helpful story for both children who are very sick and their friends who wait for them to get healthy again. The story is told simply, but with compassion and just enough information for a child to understand the seriousness of an illness like leukemia. Sami the Magic Bear is off on another very important mission and his presence and importance in the lives of the children he touches is significant. Well done!

SLEEPING MOOSE SAGA

In 1976, two idealistic newlyweds find what they believe is the perfect spot to settle: at the very end of a dirt road, six miles outside of the remote hamlet of Sleeping Moose, Alaska.

Since their Utopian odyssey immediately precedes the invention of four-wheelers, cellphones, PCs, solar panels, and other silicon-chip enhancements, it might require stern determination to replicate such a quest, today. This nearly true saga has been penned for the delight of all who dream of eloquent adventure and a life in the woods, but can't get there, right now.

About the Author

Carrie McLaren's passion for languages has been a vital part of her successful career as a Spanish and French high school teacher. Head of the Modern Languages Department at Sir Oliver Mowat, Carrie has made lifelong learning a priority throughout her career. From international exchanges in Spain and Mexico and an immersion program in Costa Rica to continuing education courses at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education at the University of Toronto, Carrie has kept up-to-date on the current theories of modern language education. She brings this passion and knowledge to this new Spanish language textbook, which provides students with fun and easy-to-learn exercises designed to inspire the next generation of modern language learners.

Carrie is currently working with Frederick in the creation of another Spanish book that will explore a variety of real life situations and experiences and how to cope with them.

Frederick Keenan, a professional engineer, has worked and travelled over the past 40 years in 17 of the 20 Spanish-speaking countries focused on in this book. The first decade concentrated on the five countries of the Andean Pact (and Paraguay) on a Canadian Government-supported collaboration to utilize the forest resources of the sub region for safe, economical and sustainable building materials.

In the following three years, he was the Director of the Forest Industries Division, United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization in Rome and worked extensively in Latin America assisting countries to use their forest resources to obtain sustainable social and economic benefits. On his return to Canada, he became the Director of International Research at the University of Western Ontario and nurtured several programs of academic cooperation with universities and research institutes around the world, including the Hispanic world. During this time, he presented week-long workshops in Spanish on the management of international university cooperation at La Universidad de los Andes, Bogotá, Colombia and La Universidad de Palermo, Buenos Aires, Argentina, and lectured in Spanish on sustainable forest utilization at the Instituto Tecnológico de Estudios Superiores de Monterrey (ITESM), Mexico and at the Junta del Acuerdo de Cartagena in Lima, Perú. He keeps his Spanish up to date by periodic visits to El Centro Lingüístico Conversa in Santa Ana, Costa Rica, which involve intensive sessions with private tutors and home stays with local families who speak no English. In semi-retirement, he regularly presents case studies at the University of Western Ontario, London, that are set in Spanish-speaking countries.

ABOUT THE BOOK

In the beginning of time, all the free people roamed the fields, plains, and forests of the new world and grew in numbers until the lands became overcrowded. The animals became hungry. Father Time saw the problem and, one moonlit night, brought forth the Great Mother Wolf from the waters of the first spring. He then charged her to take from the free people the old, sick, and injured so that the strongest and fittest would share the gifts of the new world. Soon the Mother Wolf became overwhelmed with the task that Father Time had given her. She went to Father Time and begged for some helpers. That night she was given four new cubs that looked just like her. The animals were very unhappy and went to Mother Nature to complain that they could not rest because of all the new wolves.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Dr. Clifton E. Stine is a professional engineer with over forty years of experience in defense programs. He has applied his innovation and creativity to many of the most challenging issues confronting the modern world. When his daughter asked him, "Where does snow come from?" he collected all his experience and knowledge to create the Legend of the White Wolf and how a mistake by Mother Nature's magic butterflies caused Father Time to make the first snow and create all the seasons now and for all time.

ABOUT THE BOOK

I hope that Moving On / Never Leaving allows people who have always lived in one place to see the joy that can be had by those who move. Even though the girl in the story moved a lot, she carried all her friends with her in her memories everywhere she went. Some of them even grew in her mind as she grew, matured, and aged. I also hope that the readers of this little story will realize that family, faith, and memories are more important than things.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Martha Beimer is a nearly retired bank teller. She spent the first parts of her life moving with her family for her father's job. The last fifty seven years, she has lived in or near Ballinger, Texas. Martha is a Texas master florist, but works as a bank teller. She is a grandmother who loves to travel, read, knit, sew, paint, and do other nondomestic chores. Martha credits God and her good family for her joy and successes in life. She is looking forward to having more time to share her stories. Her motto is God Is Good.

About the Book

J. Russell Brooks notes that bullying has become an epidemic in this country. In his own way, he sets up a platform for parents and children not only to share precious bonding time but also to openly talk about and discuss the reality of bullying. The Squirrel's Finnegan is a delightful book that teaches children about accepting differences and standing up against bullying.

About the Author

The author grew up in the 1960s as part of a Navy family, the youngest of three children. His father was a navy combat jet pilot where his career demanded him to move his family back and forth across the country several times. The author was born in Pensacola, Florida but if you ask where he's from, he will tell you the United States. His family finally settled down in Virginia Beach in 1972. Brooks was going into the eighth grade for what then, was a five year stretch in high school. He had always thrived in school, never having to work too hard. He was always very athletic and succeeded in both wrestling and gymnastics. His athletic passion now is big sail boat racing where he works the cockpit on a thirty-seven foot sail boat. By day, Brooks works as an asset manager for a large car rental company and by night he mostly watches television, and even admits he addicted to hour long drama series. When he was in his early fifties, his doctor diagnosed him having signs of depression. With the doctor's help to manage his depression the author was inspired to write his first book: a memoir showcasing the ups and downs of his life. He'd hoped to inspire others that might have had similar life trials to seek out help as well. The inspiration and admiration for a lifelong friend and her family has motivated the author to write his children's book as a tribute to them.

ABOUT THE BOOK

Victor is an average high school student with a not-so-average appetite for the fine things in life. He finally gets what he wants when he marries Linda, the daughter of a wealthy businessman. Their union was received reluctantly by their community. After several personal failures, Victor spirals into self destruction, having affairs, gambling and taking illicit drugs. What unfolds next is a complex cat and mouse game filled with deceit, danger and, ultimately, murder.

In this gripping whodunit, Maria Larson weaves a tale of revenge and retribution. The Night of the Jakal will absorb readers from beginning to end!

ABOUT THE BOOK

No matter how careful we are at using metals in industrial processes, some level of human exposure is unavoidable. The blades we use, the pots and pans we cook with, children's face paint, and facial makeup contain toxic metals. Toxic heavy metals are also found in cigarettes, gourmet foods such as seasonings, fish, and chocolates. When you sprinkle a dish with Himalayan sea salt, you may end up ingesting toxic metals such as arsenic, cadmium, and lead.

In this book, Nichole Coleman goes over the various aspects and characteristics of metal dependency, including metals that are essential for human health and those that are nonessential and thus harmful to human life. We must recognize our shared responsibility to make our environment a safe place to live.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Nichole Coleman, Ph.D., is an adjunct professor at San Francisco State University and University of California, Berkeley Extension, where she teaches a range of courses including organic chemistry, hematology, and clinical chemistry.

ABOUT THE BOOK

The Athaan in the Bull City tells the little-known story of the growth of the Islamic community in Durham, North Carolina. Drawing upon his own knowledge of the founding and development of Jamaat Ibad Ar-Rahman, Inc., Nazeeh Z. Abdul-Hakeem, the organization's principal founder, draws together personal recollections and the details of Durham's major Islamic organization to tell about Durham's burgeoning Islamic community.

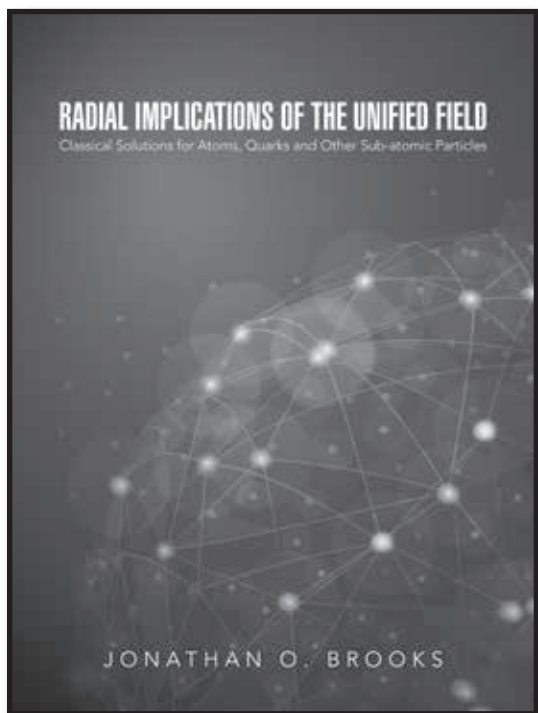

This book recounts how Islam's foundations in Durham rest upon the lives of Black American Muslims. With the passing of years, the community has grown and has changed, as arriving immigrants, Muslims from around the world, have given the community a decidedly international perspective and outlook.

If you are curious about the diversity woven into the tapestry of the American religious experience, The Athaan in the Bull City will satisfy your yearnings for discovery.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Nazeeh Z. Abdul-Hakeem, a retired city planner for Durham, North Carolina, became a Muslim in 1979. He made several major and minor pilgrimages to Makkah and Madinah in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and visited Masjid Al-Aqsa in Jerusalem. He and Olaiya, his wife, have been married since 1982.

About the Book

Do you think that Einstein was correct in saying that gravity was an electromagnetic phenomenon? Jonathan O. Brooks answers that question and many more in this exploration of nearly everything—providing proof that causality exists in atomic and subatomic regions. His research is inspired by an equation he derived fifty years ago for the separation of two similar steroidal materials using nonaqueous solvents. Radial Implications of the Unified Field reveals fascinating discoveries that will appeal to teachers, students and those with an interest in mathematics, chemistry, and physics at the junior high, high school, college or graduate level.

About the Author

Jonathan O. Brooks was born on January 24, 1927 in Shelburn, Indiana. His father was a coal miner while his mother had been a missionary in India who returned to teach locally. Drafted into the US Army in 1945, he had infantry training. As a sergeant, he was chief NCO at Regimental Operations upon his honorable discharge in 1946. After attending Indiana State, he found local employment with Pfizer. He joined Pfizer's Research and Development group in Brooklyn after he acquired a Bachelor of Science in Chemical Engineering from Purdue in 1952. He was married in 1956 to Mafalda Fenoglio and they had a daughter, Pamela. Holding a Life License, for 19 years, he taught science and math in several Indiana and Illinois schools. During summers, he obtained sufficient master's degrees at ISU to be accorded a Ph.D. After retiring in 1994, he taught science for Ivy Tec, an Indiana junior college, in the prisons.

About the Book

Over 16,000,000 men served in the armed forces in WWII. Perhaps as many as 3%, or 480,000, had a homosexual orientation. Admittedly, several thousand were screened out before being inducted, and some later received Undesirable Discharges. Sixty to Seventy thousand of these men saw combat action, and undoubtedly hundreds were killed, and thousands were wounded.

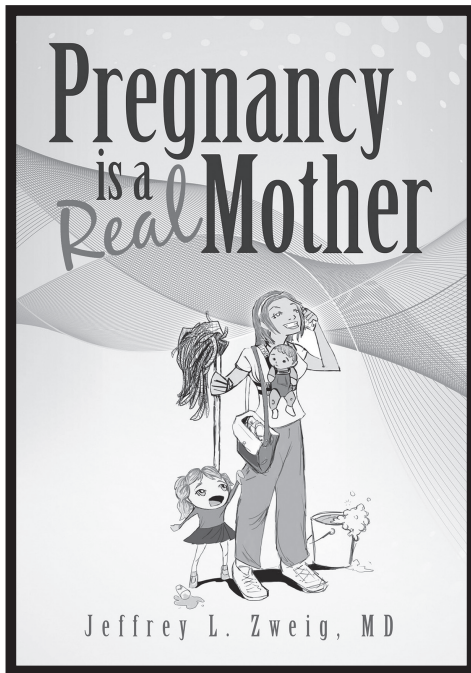

Jack Scott, by far the most outstanding seventeen-year-old in a small town in Arkansas, is forced to confront this problem both at home and in the military. This story is his, and to a degree, the stories of his family, his friends, and his comrades in combat.

The problem is handled sympathetically, if realistically.

About the Author

W. Lloyd Duncan is the author. He is a graduate of Yale University, medical school, and former U.S. Naval Flight Surgeon, and is retired from the practice of general surgery in a rural town in Tennessee. He also has penned his autobiography, "Just Getting There," and a second novel, "Dissolution," soon to be released.

ABOUT THE BOOK

The title of the book says it all: a book with its own “personality” written by an Ob-Gyn who has delivered over 8,000 babies over 40 years of practice experience. Dr. Zweig’s goal in writing this book is to “answer all the questions” about pregnancy that are typically asked on a daily basis. The book starts out on the same journey of pregnancy that the expectant parents begin: from the positive pregnancy test to labor and delivery to newborn care. All the technical information is presented but this book is different from all other books on pregnancy with:

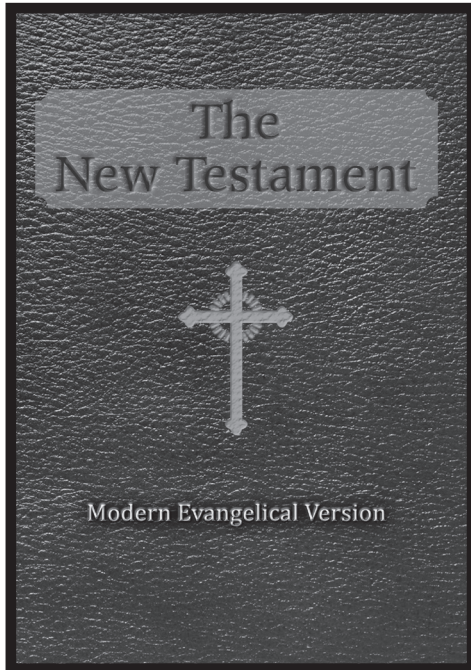

1. Over 100 pictures of patients and nurses during their pregnancy, labor and postpartum
2. Anecdotes of real events that are tied to the information being presented
3. Doses of “humor” to keep the reader smiling and giggling

You will enjoy reading the medical explanations of most of the “Old Wives Tales” near the end of the book followed by “Old Obstetrician Tales:” 25 separate stories of actual patients with different pregnancy-related situations. These true stories will intrigue you, make you laugh, bring you tears of joy and make you think.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Robert Thomas Helm, the translator, is an Evangelical, Protestant minister who has extensive training in the Biblical languages. A number of his articles have appeared in religious journals.
